Preface

Election to the American Dermatological Association is one of the greatest honors that a dermatologist might achieve in his or her lifetime. Over the past 144 years, only 1127 dermatologists have had the honor of membership. Many of our founders trained in Europe. They gained a foothold in the House of Medicine in the United States because of their expertise in syphilology. To recognize the specific skill set possessed by dermatologists, members of the ADA established the dermatology section within the American Medical Association in 1887, the American Board of Dermatology in 1932 the 4th member of the newly established American Board of Medical Specialties, the Society of Investigative Dermatology in 1937 and the American Academy of Dermatology in 1938.

Dermatologists are now respected as members of the medical community. ADA members have been and remain at the forefront of immunologic, oncologic, surgical, cosmetic, and pathology research. Medical students covet dermatology residencies and only the most successful, well-rounded are successful in matching into our field. One thing we must always do is treasure the contributions of those who came before us. To that end, David Pariser, MD, ADA Historian (2013-present), has done a phenomenal job studying the materials in the ADA Archives, and has written the history contained in this tome.

As we stand on the shoulders of the Founders and the generations of dermatology leaders that followed them, we continue to feel the pressure to advance our field. Our annual meeting will continue to be a place where we review the latest dermatologic research, renew acquaintances, and discuss new concepts that will enhance the health of our patients and the population in general. We will continue to develop and propagate position statements designed to improve the well-being of the public. In addition, members of the ADA have been at the forefront of caring for patients of all races, ethnicities, genders and sexual orientations, and improving dermatologic outcomes for people of color. Finally, we will stand side-by-side to bear the weight of future generations of dermatologists who will take our specialty to greater heights.

We teach. We perform research. We lead. We are committed to training the future leaders of dermatology, increasing diversity and upholding justice and equality within the House of Medicine and society in general. Notice the twinkle in the eyes of the members in the pages of this book. That will provide you with confidence that the state of dermatology has been and will continue to be STRONG.

With warm regards,

Brian Berman, MD, PhD, President, 2020-21

Jeffrey P. Callen, MD, President 2021-22

Robert T. Brodell, MD, Secretary-Treasurer, 2016-22

From the earliest days of the American Dermatological Association, the recording of its history has been important to the identity of the Association. It currently falls to the Historian to catalog and preserve the records of this, the oldest national dermatological society in the United States.

The Board and Officers, both current and past have encouraged this effort and several merit special recognition. Some have made calls to members to encourage them to provide their biographies or even written the biographies themselves.

Foremost is Dr. Antoinette Hood. Not only is Toni an eagle-eyed proofreader, but she has helped greatly with much of the content of the biographies, particularly making sure that we have as much up-to-date information as possible.

Julie Odessky, the Association's Executive Manager, has doggedly pursued getting up-to-date biographies from our current members who did not respond to multiple requests. You wouldn't believe how hard it is for many of our members to provide the simple timely information requested and Julie has spent countless hours emailing, calling and otherwise pestering members.

Our Secretary-Treasurer Bob Brodell helped get the last few biographies and was instrumental in getting us "over the line" by personally writing some of the "delinquent" biographies. Bob has also been very supportive in allocating the financial resources to see this project come to completion.

Several past presidents including Lowell Goldsmith, Al Kopf, Gene (and Gloria) Bauer, Evan Farmer, Rex Amonette, Wilma Bergfeld, Brian Berman, Toni Hood and Darrell Rigel have provided information and content for the History.

Special thanks to David Cohen who championed the ADA's "pivot" to focus the Association's efforts on the value of Dermatology within the house of Medicine and the threat of marginalization of the specialty. David provided some of the content for the history chapter of this volume.

On a personal note, spending many hours sifting through the Archives and reading the entire record of minutes from 1876 to the present has given me an almost personal acquaintance with some of the great names in the illustrious past of our Association and specialty. I have also gotten to know many of our contemporaries in a new light. I hope the readers of this volume will derive as much pleasure by perusing it as I have by compiling it.

The First One-Hundred Forty-Four Years

The year was 1876. The Centennial Celebration of the United States opened on a rainy day in Philadelphia (Figs. 1 and 2). The American Medical Association and the International Medical Congress were also meeting in Philadelphia.

Fig. 1. 1876 was the Centennial Year for the United States.

An express train called the Transcontinental Express arrived on June 4 in San Francisco via the first transcontinental railroad only 83 hours and 39 minutes after leaving New York City (Fig. 3).

Alexander Graham Bell made the first telephone call to Thomas Watson on February 14. Bell and Elisha Gray applied separately for telephone patents. The Supreme Court eventually ruled that Bell was the rightful inventor (Fig. 4).

Johns Hopkins University opened on February 22 followed by Meharry Medical College on November 7.

The American Dermatological Association was founded on September 7, 1876

George Henry Fox, Lucius Duncan Bulkley, Louis A. Duhring, Isaac E. Atkinson, Lunsford P. Yandell, and Edward Wigglesworth met at a meeting of the Section of Practical Medicine of the American Medical Association (AMA) on June 7, 1876, and decided to form a national society of physicians with a special interest in Dermatology.

Fig. 5. Isaac E. Atkinson (1846-1906).

Isaac E. Atkinson (Fig. 5) was a graduate of the University of Maryland in 1865 and the first clinical professor of Dermatology in Baltimore. He was the dean of the medical school from 1886 to 1900 and his published articles were mostly about syphilis. Atkinson was also the author of the “Report of the Lunacy Commission” to the governor of Maryland in 1902. Writing in the Archives of Dermatology and Syphilology in 1926, George Henry Fox described Atkinson as “keen and clearly expressed views on all vexed questions.”

Fig 6. Lucius Duncan Bulkley (1845-1928).

Lucius Duncan Bulkley (Fig. 6) (whose father Henry Daggett Bulkley [1803-1872] is credited with being the first American dermatologist) studied at L'Hôpital Saint-Louis in Paris. He was associated with Columbia Physicians and Surgeons from 1869 and also attended at the “Hospital for the Ruptured and Crippled.” The younger Bulkley founded the New York Skin and Cancer Hospital in 1883, where he was a frequent lecturer. Bulkley was president of the New York Dermatological Society (NYDS) in 1880 although he later resigned from the NYDS in 1914. He is credited with the formation of the Section of Dermatology and Syphilology of the AMA in 1888.

Fig. 7. Louis Adolphus Duhring (1845-1913).

Louis Adolphus Duhring (Fig. 7) studied dermatology in Vienna with Hebra, (also in Berlin, London, and Paris and studied leprosy in Constantinople and Norway) and was associated for his entire career with the University of Pennsylvania. He published the third American textbook on cutaneous diseases and, according to George Henry Fox, had the “meticulous manner of a fine gentleman, not easy of approach, but a genial easy companion”.

George Henry Fox (Fig. 8) graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1869. He served an internship with Duhring and Van Harlingen, trained in dermatology in Berlin under Virchow, in Vienna under Hebra, Neumann and Schroetter; in Paris under Bazin, Hardy and Vidal, and in London under W. Tilbury Fox and Hutchinson. His son, Howard Fox, later a leader of the ADA and first president of the American Academy of Dermatology and Syphilology (AAD&S), was born in London in 1873. G. H. Fox was Professor of Diseases of the Skin at Women's Medical College in Columbus, Ohio, the New York Postgraduate Medical and Hospital and Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons from 1875 to 1907. In 1952 Bechet wrote that "He was perhaps the friend of more American dermatologists than any one of his generation."

Fig. 9. Edward Wigglesworth (1840-1896).

Edward Wigglesworth (Fig. 9) was a graduate of Harvard Medical School in 1865. After five years' postgraduate work in Europe, he established a free clinic in Boston in 1870 and joined the Boston City Hospital in 1877 as a dermatologist. He was also an instructor in Dermatology at Harvard. He is credited as the founder of the Boston Medical Library. G. H. Fox wrote that he "smoked his pipe with grace and dignity."

Lunsford P. Yandell (Fig. 10) graduated from the University of Maryland in 1825 and was an ordained minister. He founded the Medical Institute of Louisville, which later became the University of Louisville. His publications were mostly on religion and paleontology, none on Dermatology. Yandell was the oldest ADA founder and died in 1878, shortly after presenting a paper at the first Annual meeting in 1877.

These six men decided to hold an organizational meeting at the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia on Wednesday, September 6, 1876, at 6:00 PM, immediately after the close of the Section of Dermatology and Syphilology meeting of the International Medical Congress then in session. An invitation was mailed to approximately fifty physicians in various parts of the United States whose names were known in connection with Dermatology (Fig. 11).

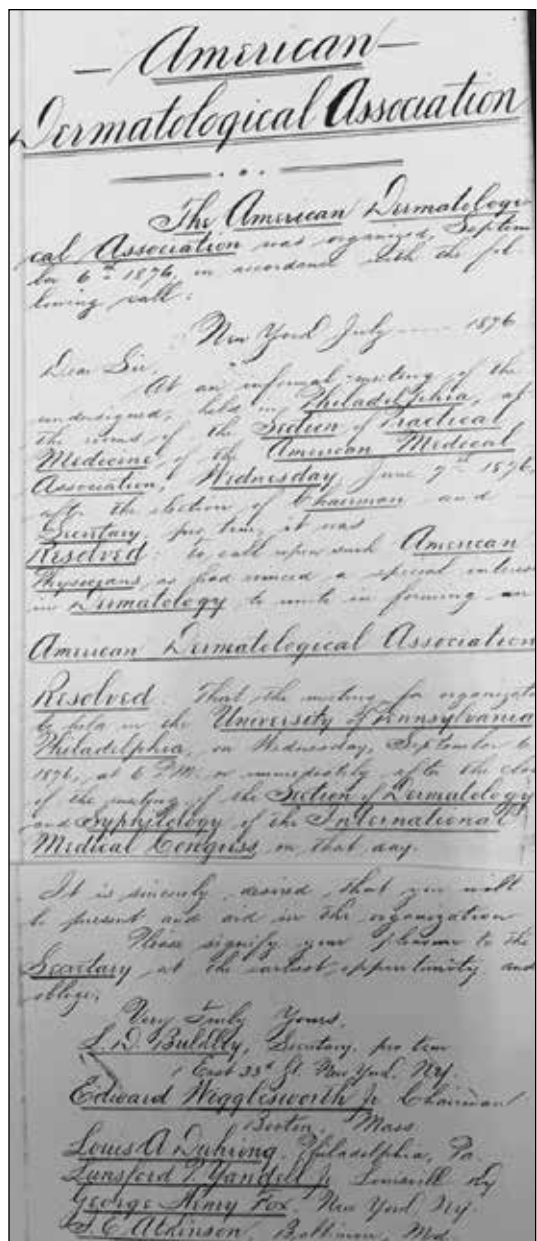

Fig 11. Letter sent to dermatologists informing them of the establishment of the American Dermatological Association and inviting them to an organizational meeting.

The following physicians responded to the invitation and were present at the organizational meeting in Philadelphia. These dermatologists, all men, are considered to be the founders of the Association:

Isaac E. Atkinson, Baltimore
 Thomas R. Brown, Baltimore
 Lucius Duncan Bulkley, New York City
 Samuel C. Busey, Washington
 Louis A. Duhring, Philadelphia
 Carl Heitzman, New York City
 Edward L. Keyes, New York City
 John A. Ochterlony, Louisville
 Henry G. Piffard, New York City
 Robert W. Taylor, New York City
 Arthur Van Harlingen, Philadelphia
 Faneuil D. Weisse, New York City
 James C. White, Boston
 Edward Wigglesworth, Boston

Prominently missing from this organizational meeting were George H. Fox and Lunsford P. Yandell, who nevertheless are included as Founders.

Dr. Wigglesworth was elected Chairman, and Dr. Bulkley was elected Secretary of the organizational meeting. A committee was appointed, consisting of Dr. Bulkley, Dr. Ochterlony, and Dr. Van Harlingen, to prepare a Constitution and by-laws and to make nominations of officers for the ensuing year. Just one day later a Constitution and by-laws were presented to the meeting. The documents were discussed section by section, amended and approved on September 7, 1876. They were adopted in toto and the American Dermatological Association was declared organized.

The following officers were elected for 1876-1877: President James C. White of Boston; Vice Presidents Louis A. Duhring of Philadelphia and Robert W. Taylor of New York City; Secretary L. Duncan Bulkley of New York City; Treasurer James N. Hyde of Chicago.

Fig. 12. *The Cataract House, Niagara Falls, New York.

The organizational meeting then adjourned to hold its first regular annual meeting in Niagara Falls at the Cataract House on September 4-6, 1877 (Fig 12).

The members who attended the first regular annual meeting in 1877 are considered to be charter members.

Membership in the Association:

The original constitution and by-laws stated that the membership shall consist of no more than fifty active members, all of whom were residents of the United States, and honorary members (limited to ten at any one time), who could be residents of the United States or any other country. In 1878, at the second annual meeting, the by-laws were amended to read “active members, residents of the United States and Canada.” In 1879, Dr. James E. Graham of Toronto was the first Canadian elected to membership.

While the active membership was originally limited to fifty physicians, this number has been gradually increased over the years. In 1906, the active membership was increased to sixty. In 1911, the number was raised to seventy-five, and in 1915, to one hundred. In 1929, upon motion by Dr. William A. Pusey, the by-laws were amended to increase the active membership to 125 with no limit on the number of honorary and international honorary memberships. In 1936, a proposal to increase the active membership to 150 was defeated in the context of a discussion related to the formation of the American Academy of Dermatology and Syphilology. The limit on Active Members was 200 in 1993 when a motion was made, and defeated, to reduce the membership to 150. Since 2001, the number of active members has been limited to 250 and a category of senior membership has been created which is not limited in number. There have been 1,127 dermatologists inducted as active members into the Association between 1876 and 2020.

Since the Association's organization, membership has been offered on a selective basis to the teachers, investigators, writers, and leaders of North American Dermatology. Honorary international membership has been offered to other dermatologists with global status. Dr. Jay F. Schamberg of Philadelphia, President of the Association in 1920, stated that as qualifications for membership, he would place: first, personal character; second, scientific attainment; and third, dermatological achievement.

Governance and Management:

From inception until 1930, the American Dermatological Association was an unincorporated association governed by a “Council” which consisted of the officers and one or two members elected at large. The Council met irregularly as the need arose during each year, often in conjunction with another meeting or even on occasion in the home of the ADA President. The subject of formal incorporation of the society was discussed multiple times. In 1914 at the annual meeting at the La Salle Hotel in Chicago, Dr. Sigmund Pollitzer, an early influential leader very active in the Association, reported that “after consultation with eminent legal authorities he was advised that incorporation had no advantages whatever for our Association and was attended with a great deal of trouble and some expense.” By 1930, Dr. Pollitzer had changed his mind and the Association was incorporated (Figs. 13 and 14).

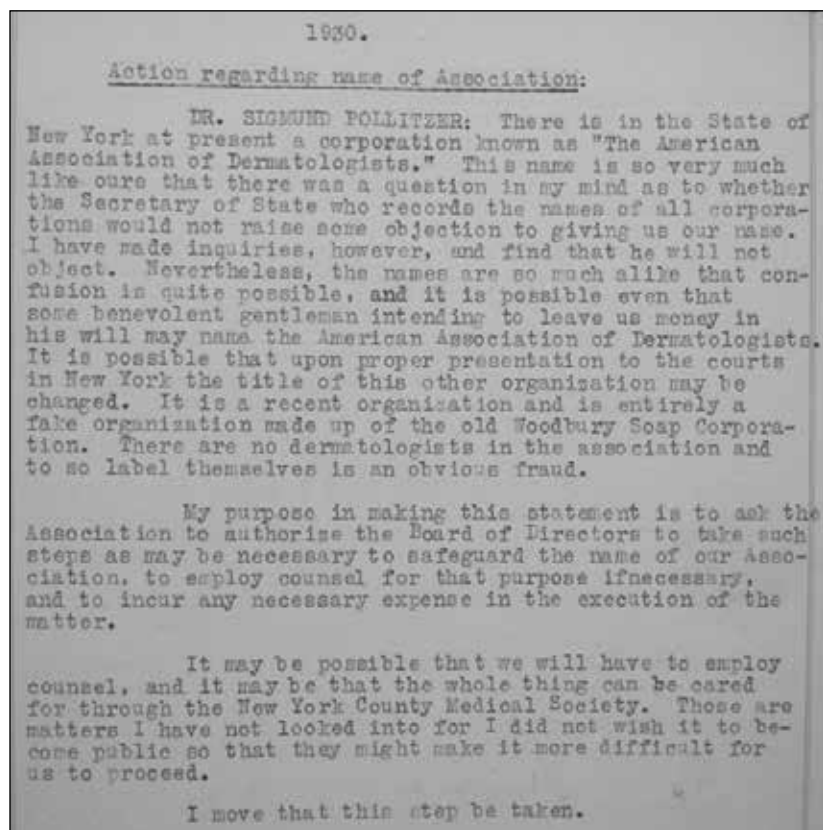

Fig 13. Minutes of 1930 meeting. Dr. Pollitzer moves for incorporation of the Association.

From 1930 to the present, the Association has been governed by a Board of Directors consisting of the officers and up to four directors. In recent years there have been two Board members elected at-large in addition to the officers. The Association received 501(c)6 status in 1956 as a tax-exempt organization.

For nearly its entire history, the society has been managed by its members and has accepted no outside financial support. In the early years a member from the host city arranged the meetings; however, in recent years the logistical planning of the meeting has been the duty of the Secretary-Treasurer supported by a committee (and often supported by the Secretary-Treasurer’s spouse), while the scientific content of the meeting has been planned by a committee appointed by the President. For a brief period between 1997 and 2002, the administrative management of the society was delegated to Dermatology Services, Inc., a subsidiary of the American Academy of Dermatology. Starting in 2001, Michelle Gratz became the first ADA employee working directly for the Secretary-Treasurer. She was followed in 2006 by Julie Odessky and later the addition of Phyllis Segaloff, both of whom currently manage the affairs of the Association under the direction of the Secretary-Treasurer and the Board.

In 1952, the American Dermatological Association Research and Educational Fund, Inc., (ADARE) was formed and incorporated and received 501(c)3 tax exempt designation. ADARE was organized to promote research in the fields of dermatology and syphilology. This entity also receives money or property from which either the principal or income is distributed for scientific and educational purposes; it also partially supports the scientific content of the annual educational meeting as well as providing grants to medical students and residents in Dermatology.

Preservation of History:

Early in the Association's history it was realized that keeping records was important. The task of maintaining the records was left to the Secretary until the office of Historian was established in 1915. George Thomas Jackson was elected as the first Historian but died that same year. After Dr. Jackson's death, Dr. Howard Fox served as Historian for 32 years from 1916 until 1948. During his term, it was the task of the historian to prepare obituary notices in honor of deceased members; these notices were published verbatim in the Association's minutes each year. Fox started the collection of individual member photographs; this practice is still maintained, and photographs of almost every member from 1876 until 2020 are included in this book.

Subsequent Historians of the Association were: Paul Bechet 1949-1954, Herbert Rattner 1955-1960, Marcus Caro 1961-1962, Frederick Szymanski 1964-1986, J. Graham Smith 1987-1991, Robert Pittelkow 1993-2001, Robert Jackson 2002-2004, John E. Wolf 2005-2012, and David Pariser 2013 to the present. The Archives of the Association were passed from one Historian to the next, and the minutes were passed from one Secretary-Treasurer to the next. A committee chaired by Evan Farmer in 2000 worked with a professional archivist to consolidate, catalog, and preserve the collection and developed policies and procedures for archiving material and the following mission statement for the Archives: "The Archives of the American Dermatological Association is the institutional memory of the Association. Its mission is to serve the membership and staff by preserving, organizing and making accessible the historical, administrative and legal records of enduring value of the Association.” Its goals are to document past and ongoing activities of the Association and its members and to develop pride in membership by exhibiting and offering access to the historical records of the Association. The current Historian, along with a professional archivist, has collected and catalogued photographs, minutes, financial records, biographies of members and artifacts some of which are presented in this volume.

The Archives are physically maintained at the office of the American Academy of Dermatology, which is currently in Rosemont, Illinois (Fig. 15). The Archives are available for viewing by request to the Historian or the Secretary-Treasurer. In addition to the member photographs, the Archives contain meeting programs, verbatim transactions of the scientific sessions, detailed minutes of executive sessions, formal portraits of members, “candid” photographs of meetings, original membership applications, financial records, and artifacts.

Presentation of History:

In 1906, a compilation of the member photographs was published. There were further compilations of photographs and brief biographies of members published in 1952 by Dr. Paul Bechet, in 1976 by Dr. Frederick Symanski, and in 1994 by Dr. Robert Pittelkow. This current volume has relied heavily on the work of these previous Historians for biographies of members inducted prior to 1994.

Minutes of the meetings:

The minutes were written in the beautiful handwriting style of each of the early Secretaries from 1876 until 1910. Verbatim typed transcripts of scientific sessions and executive sessions began in 1911 and continued into the 1960’s. A “Mrs. Snyder” was acknowledged at the 1927 meeting as the Association’s long-time stenographer. Minutes are missing for the years 1959, 1965, 1966,

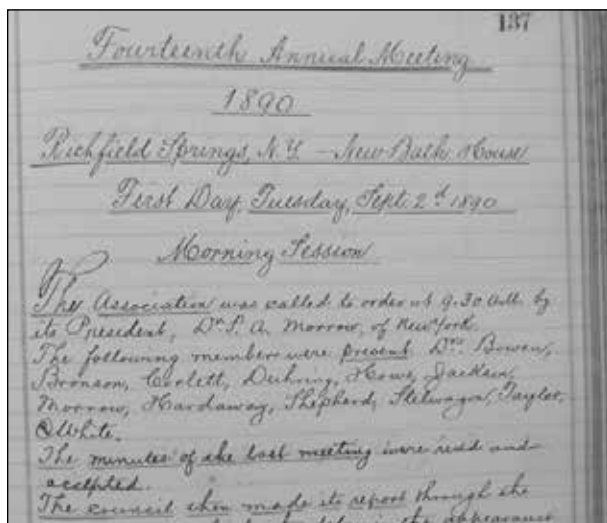

Fig. 16. First few lines of the minutes of the 1890 meeting in Richfield Springs, New York. Handwriting of George T. Jackson, Secretary-Treasurer. ADA Archives.

1967, 1972, 1974, 1975, 1976, 1978, and 1995 but are otherwise intact from 1876 until the present. Verbatim transcripts of the minutes stopped in the 1960’s; during the 1960’s, 1970’s, 1980’s, and early 1990’s the minutes are very sketchy. During the period of 1997 to 2002, when Dermatology Services, Inc. provided management for the Association, the minutes were improved but then became less “colorful.” In 2019, with permission of the presenters, PowerPoint presentations were stored on USB drives and in printed form in the Archives. It is planned to continue this practice in the hope that it will provide important information for ADA Historians in the future.

Meetings of the Association:

Since the first meeting in 1877 and until 2019, the Association has met 139 times in 95 different locations. On a number of occasions, meetings were held outside the United States: including: Montreal in 1895; Toronto in 1931; Havana in 1932; Quebec City in 1939; Murray Bay, Quebec in 1947; Jasper Park, Alberta in 1948; Bermuda in 1961; Acapulco in 1973; Banff, Alberta in 1981; Whistler, British Columbia in 1995; St. Moritz, Switzerland in 1988, and Vienna in 2000. The most popular meeting sites were: The Homestead, Hot Springs, Virginia; seven times; The Ocean House in Newport, Rhode Island, and the Greenbrier in White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia, each four times. Hosting the meeting three times each were the Arlington Hotel in Washington, DC; the New York Academy of Medicine; the Broadmoor in Colorado Springs, Colorado; The Boca Raton Hotel and Club in Boca Raton, Florida; The Breakers in Palm Beach, Florida; and the Silverado Resort and Spa, Napa Valley, California. There were no meetings in 1918, 1942, 1943, and 1945 due to wartime restrictions; the 2020 meeting was cancelled due to the COVID-19 pandemic, otherwise meetings have been held every year. Meetings featured formal presentations of papers by members, business meetings called “Executive Sessions” and always very lively discussions whether about the scientific papers presented or the items of business before the Association. This author has read the complete record of the Association in its entirety from 1876 to the present; in addition to confirming much of the historical record previously published, the reader has discovered some interesting and previously unreported information about our Association’s illustrious past. Following are some of the highlights of interesting meeting locations and events. While some could be considered trivial, others are momentous.

The first Annual Meeting was held on September 4-6, 1877, at the Cataract House Hotel, Niagara Falls, New York. James Clarke White, the first President, opened the meeting with the following quote:

“We assemble now for the first time prepared to present to each other our views in relation to the general interests of dermatology, to report and discuss the results of our special studies and to form that more intimate personal acquaintanceship amongst ourselves, dermatologists of a wide country which is so essential to mutual support and understanding. This meeting marks an important era in American Dermatology – that of its fully recognized independent position.”

Twelve members were present to hear the first paper presented, appropriately by George Henry Fox, entitled “On Molluscum Contagiosum.” Other papers presented included: “On the eczema marginatum of Hebra (tinea trichophytina cruris) as observed in America” by L. Duncan Bulkley; “Acute conditions of disease excited by iodide of potassium” by Almon P. Brooks; “The lymphatic theory of syphilitic infection with a new view of the relation between chancre and chancroid and suggestions for the radical cure of syphilis” by William Hardaway. Seventeen papers in all were presented, some in toto and some by title only.

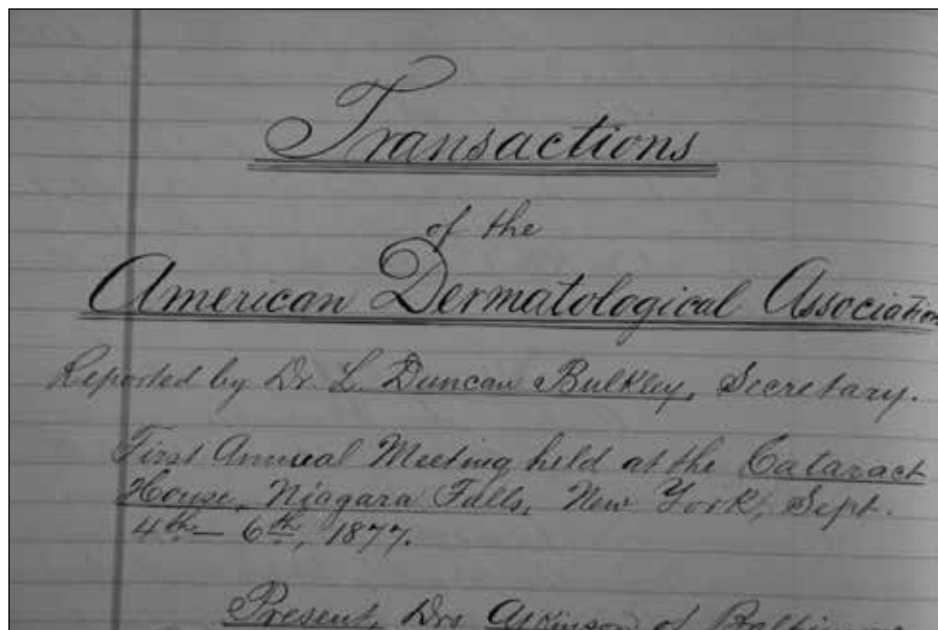

Fig. 17. First record of transactions of the society, 1877.

Transactions of each meeting were diligently recorded in the minutes (Fig. 17); in addition, the Association published and disseminated its transactions. Beginning with the first Annual meeting in 1877 and following each meeting until 1909, the ADA published its own transactions. Early transactions were paperback pamphlets (Fig. 18) but were hardback volumes from 1900 until 1910.

Fig. 18. First volume of Transactions of the American Dermatological Association published in 1878.

Only ten members attended the second annual meeting at the Grand Union Hotel in Saratoga Springs, New York, in 1878. Dues at that time were assessed at $5.00 per member. By 1882 at the Ocean House in Newport, Rhode Island, it was necessary to levy a special assessment of $3.00 per member. Only eight registered for the 1884 meeting at the Highland Villa Hotel in West Point, New York. The members heard the treasurer's report:

Cash on Hand	$68.00
Dues from members to date this year	$132.00
Total	$200.05

The 1885 meeting hosted 14 members at the Indian Harbor Hotel in Greenwich, Connecticut (Fig. 19).

Transactions of the Association were first published in the Journal of Cutaneous Diseases, but by 1887 there was discontent with this journal; the Association decided to look for alternatives or even publish its own transactions independent of any journal.

Note the bowler hats and canes of some of the members in the photograph of the 1890 meeting at the New Bath House Hotel in Richfield Springs New York (Fig. 20).

Present in the Archives are some of the actual canes of some of these early members. Apparently the woods of the canes were tipped with silver and used as pointers when lantern slide projection came to the Association (Fig. 21).

Fig. 21. Silver-tipped batons used as pointers made from the wood of the canes of Heitzell, Stelwagon and Schamberg. ADA Archives

At the 1891 meeting in Washington, DC, Association President Francis B. Greenough announced that the members had been invited to a reception at the White House by the President of the United States, Benjamin Harrison.

In 1897, an Association dinner was suggested, but only eleven of twenty-three members favored it, so the idea was abandoned.

At the 1899 meeting in Philadelphia, a new technology for teaching known as the “Magic Lantern” was demonstrated. These lantern slides became a standard in dermatology until the development of 35 mm slides decades later.

At the meeting in 1900, there was growing discontent expressed with the publication of the Association's transactions, which were then published in the Journal of Cutaneous and Genitourinary Diseases. A committee was formed which concluded that continuation with the Journal of Cutaneous and Genitourinary Diseases was "not feasible" and recommended that the Association have its own Journal.

Fig. 22. The Journal of Cutaneous Diseases Including Syphilis – The official Organ of the American Dermatological Association from 1902-1920.

At the twenty-fifth anniversary meeting in 1901, twenty-four members were present. There was a lively debate as to whether the Association should pay the expenses incurred by its delegates to the recently held International Congress of Dermatology in Paris.

By 1902, due to the uncertainty of irregular publication of the ADA Transactions, the Association was able to assume control of the Journal of Cutaneous and Genitourinary Diseases and renamed it the Journal of Cutaneous Diseases Including Syphilis – The Official Organ of the American Dermatological Association (Fig. 22).

In 1904 at the Intercontinental Hotel in Niagara Falls, a request was received from the American Medical Association that the American Dermatological Association [and other specialty societies] "give up their identity and allow themselves to be absorbed into the American Medical Association." The Association rejected that proposal and voted that "the matter be laid upon the table." Also recorded in the 1904 minutes was a visit by the members to the power generating facility at Niagara Falls.

In 1905, at the meeting held at the New York Academy of Medicine, William Thomas Corlett heralded the acceptance of Dermatology as a bona fide specialty in his Presidential Address entitled "An Epoch in the Evolution of American Medical Education – The Almost General Recognition of Dermatology in the Curriculum." That evening the members attended a performance at the New York Hippodrome.

Fig. 23. Minutes of the ADA meeting December 29, 1905. First mention of possible membership for women.

It was at the 1905 meeting that the first reference to women as members appears. The Association received a recommendation from the Council that "...women should be eligible for membership in the Association provided that they meet all the requirements of the Committee on Nominations and receive the necessary vote of the Association." The minutes record that "Dr. Hyde said that the question had been debated upon previously" [although there is no record of such a discussion] "and had revealed such strenuous opposition from some of the most valued members that he arose to prevent any reopening of the question whatsoever." Dr. Hyde moved that the subject be laid on the table. Dr. Stelwagon seconded the motion and it was carried (Fig. 23).

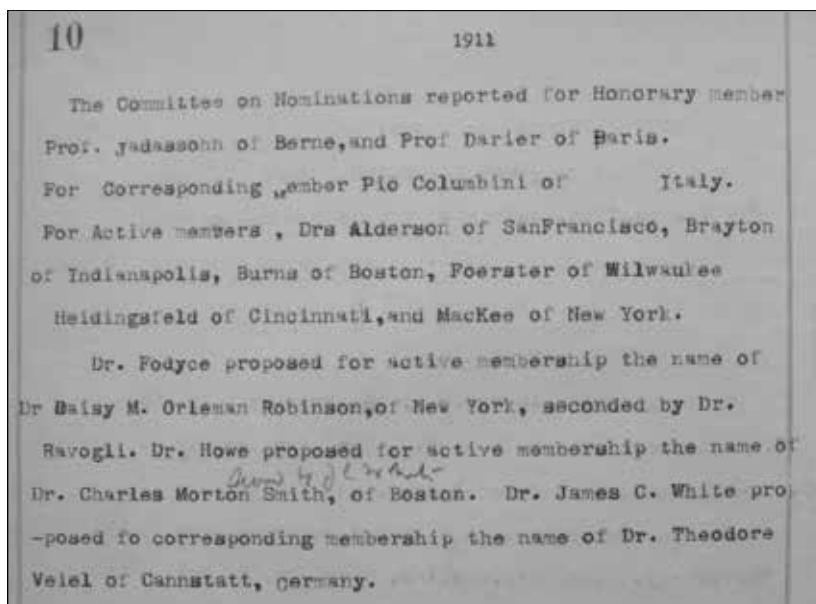

Fig. 24. Minutes of 1911 meeting. Daisy Orleman Robinson (and others) are proposed for active membership.

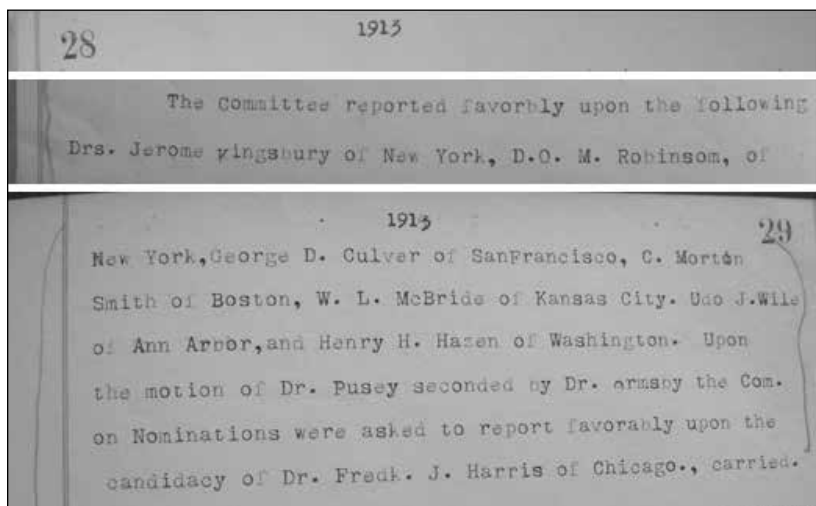

Fig. 25. Minutes of the 1913 meeting, where Daisy Orleman Robinson's (and others') candidacy was approved. Note that her name is listed as D. O. M. Robinson, perhaps so that it would not be obvious that she was a woman.

Previous histories of the American Dermatologic Association have recorded that the first woman member was Beatrice M. Kesten in 1951; however, the minutes of the 1911 meeting clearly say that Daisy Orleman Robinson of New York, the first documented woman dermatologist in the United States, was among those proposed that year for membership (Fig. 24).

It was the practice to wait for two years after proposal before a final vote on induction. The 1913 minutes report a favorable recommendation and action by the Association on her membership along with that of others that year (Fig 25). Even though she was clearly inducted as a member, there is no record that she ever attended a meeting.

Beatrice M. Kesten, traditionally considered to be the first female member, was elected in 1951 and regularly attended meetings. The next woman member to be elected was June C. Shafer in 1954. She was also the first woman member of the Board of Directors of the American Academy of Dermatology. June Shafer was followed by Ruth Freinkel in 1972 and Marie-Louise Johnson in 1973. Marie-Louise was the Association's first woman president in 2002. Other early women members included Margaret Storken, elected in 1973, who was the first woman officer of the AAD as vice-president in 1973; Dorothy Windhorst, elected to the Association in 1976; Wilma Fowler Bergfeld, the Association's President in 2019, who was elected in 1980 and who was also the first woman president of the AAD in 1982; and Nancy Esterly, elected to the Association in 1981.

In 1912, at the thirty-sixth meeting in St. Louis at the Barnard Free Skin and Cancer Hospital, the members were driven by automobile (quite a treat for the day) through the parks and city. They visited the Shaw Gardens, where the members witnessed a demonstration by Prof. George T. Moore on the "Production of Disease in Plants and Animals by Parasitic Plants." The Association also took the following actions: voted to hold future annual meetings during the Christmas holidays, formed a Board of Trustees to manage the Journal, resolved to accept "ethical advertisements" according to standards set by the AMA, and decided to abandon separate publications of the Transactions.

1914 was a busy year. The following items were discussed and extensively debated: (1) There should be a requirement for an "Entrance Thesis" for ADA membership – not adopted; (2) New members should be required to present a paper in the first 2 years – adopted; (3) A letter will be sent to the President of the United States and to the Congress requesting the establishment of a national home for lepers – adopted; (4) A committee will be formed to join with the Committee on Education of the AMA to standardize dermatologic teaching and to oppose the removal of syphilology from the specialty of dermatology – adopted.

Fig 26. An ampoule of French Neosalvarsan which, according to the note from Donald Pillsbury, MD, who donated it to the Archives, was brought to the US in the submarine Deutschland during the War. ADA Archives.

At the Hotel Powhattan in Washington, DC, in 1916, there was a lengthy discussion about the problem of disruption of supply of Salvarsan (arsphenimine) for treatment of syphilis due to the World War. Arsphenimine was the first organic antisyphilitic and was a great improvement over inorganic mercury and bismuth (Fig. 26).

In response to the shortage, Drs. Schamberg, Raiziss, and Kolmer formed a "Research Institute" governed by an "independent board" and "after extensive research" developed arsenobenzol as an alternative to arsphenimine. In 1921, Dr. Schamberg and his colleagues contributed $511,000 (over $7.3 million in 2020 dollars) to their Research Institute from the sales of arsenobenzol and arsphenimine. At the 1922 meeting, it was reported that the proprietor of German Salvarsan made unflattering remarks about the honesty and sincerity of the Research Institute and undercut the price of Salvarsan by 20 cents per 0.9-gram dose. The ADA discussed this action by the German company and argued that this was "...typical German propaganda and every man should support the Research Institute by using only American Salvarsan."

By 1919, it was increasingly clear that the Association's Journal was losing too much money; by the 1920 meeting at the Grove Park Inn in Asheville, North Carolina, the Association voted to give the Journal to the AMA, whereupon it was renamed the Archives of Dermatology and Syphilology. It was reported that many members lamented that they now needed to refer to the publication of their transactions as the "Archives" instead of the "Journal."

Also in 1920, the Association voted to send $1,000 to colleagues in foreign universities who were disrupted by the World War, even if their countries were "our late enemies."

In 1921 at the New Ocean House in Swampscott, Massachusetts, a new gavel was presented to President Oliver Ormsby. The cane that belonged to 1903 President Joseph Zeisler was used to make the handle of the gavel and the cane of Dr. James Clarke White, ADA founder and first President, was used to make the head of the gavel. Another item discussed at the 1921 meeting was the difficulty in obtaining alcohol for compounding prescriptions due to Prohibition. Dr. Ravogli made the point that the alcohol used was often diluted or "contaminated with materials irritating to the skin." The Association concluded that "this was the fault of the druggists and their disreputable activities, not of the Government."

The discussions at the 1925 meeting, again at the Hotel Powhattan in Washington, DC, were dominated by the planning for the 50th anniversary of the Association for the following year. George Henry Fox, then 79, the oldest living Founder was elected President for the 50-year Golden Anniversary celebration to come in 1926. Fox declined the election because his son, Howard Fox, was the 1925 Association President. After Andrew P. Biddle was elected to the 1926 Presidency, the Association unanimously elected George Henry Fox as the Honorary President for the Golden Anniversary celebration.

Sixty-two members signed in at the Golden Anniversary meeting in 1926 at the Bellevue Stratford Hotel in Philadelphia. In his address to the members as Honorary President, George Henry Fox not only recounted the successes of the previous 50 years but also looked forward to the next 50:

"In 1976 there certainly will be a centennial celebration of the founding of our Association. I do not expect to attend it and most of you will be absent on that occasion. But possibly someone here tonight may be present at that meeting, which will of course be held in Philadelphia, and I would like to suggest that in the event of such a case he be instructed by those of us here tonight to convey to our colleagues of the future a greeting from the past. I am sure you will join with me in extending to these unknown successors of ours hearty congratulations and sincere regards and our very best wishes for the continued prosperity and perpetuity of the American Dermatological Association."

It was at the 1926 meeting that Howard Fox announced that he had assembled photographs of all current and previous Association members "except those who refused to be photographed." The Historian was directed "to purchase a proper chest or trunk to keep the photographs and the historical objects of the Association."

Part of the 1927 meeting was held aboard the S. S. Alabama in the Chesapeake Bay off the Baltimore coast. At that meeting, Dr. T. Caspar Gilchrist moved that there be a special assessment of five dollars to cover the extra expenses of cigars, White Rock water, and tips. An initiation fee of $25 was instituted and the annual dues were increased to $20 after an extensive debate.

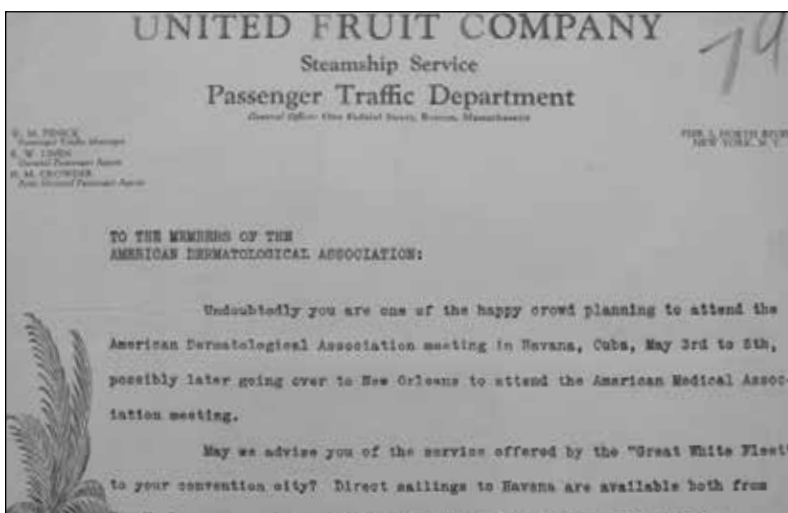

Fig. 28. 1932 letter to ADA members from the United Fruit Company offering 4-day "luxury steamer" transportation from New York to Havana on the "Great White Fleet." A shorter trip was available from New Orleans.

In 1931 at the Royal Oak Hotel in Toronto, the Association recommended that a Board of Examiners in Dermatology and Syphilology be created (Fig. 27); a committee was formed to collaborate with the section of Dermatology and Syphilology of the AMA. The American Board of Dermatology and Syphilology was established the following year, in 1932.

The 1932 meeting was held in Havana, Cuba, the first meeting to be held outside of either the US or Canada. Adventurous members could take the Sikorsky S-40 seaplane (the "Flying Boat" operated by Pan American Air Ways), which began service from Miami to Havana in 1932, or they could travel by ship from either New York or New Orleans (Fig. 28).

It was at this meeting in 1932 that the Association voted to lend the newly established American Board of Dermatology and Syphilology $500 without interest "for the purpose of furnishing funds for beginning its work." The members attending the meeting in Havana were advised that they were allowed to bring back 50 cigars and 300 cigarettes, but that "plumage of wild birds was liable to confiscation by United States authorities."

The 1933 meeting at the Edgewater Beach Hotel in Chicago was the first to hear a report from the newly established American Board of Dermatology and Syphilology. Detailed reports of the actions of the Board were given at each subsequent year's meeting.

From 1933 to 1936 any ADA member who was a Professor, Associate Professor, Clinical Professor, Assistant Professor or who could document 15 years of practice in dermatology could have a certificate from the Board without examination. These 122 ADA members who took advantage of this opportunity representing nearly all members were known as "The Founders Group." Starting in 1934, all new ADA members needed to be Board Certified and starting in 1938 all candidates for the Board Certification were required to have a three-year residency.

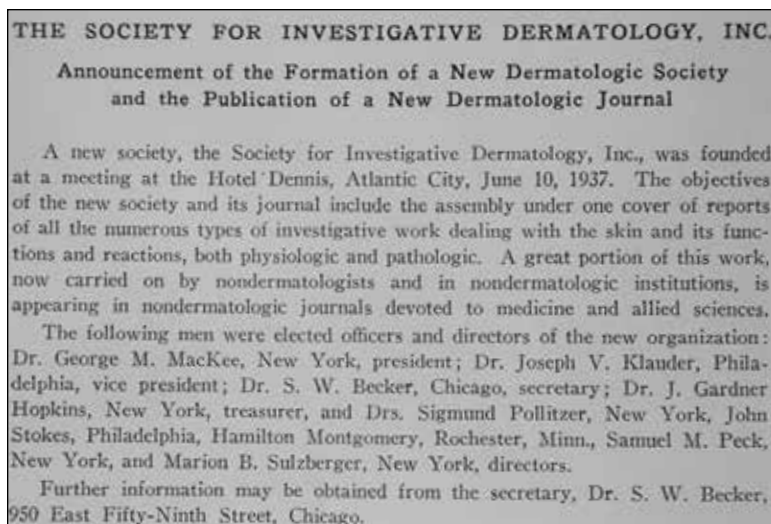

Fig 29. Announcement of the formation of the SID. Archives of Dermatology and Syphilology October 1937.

In 1937 at the ADA meeting at the Skytop Lodge in Cresco, Pennsylvania, Dr. John Stokes of the University of Pennsylvania formally suggested the creation of a new dermatologic society and journal to accommodate the “physiologic and pathologic” work related to Dermatology which was being done by non-dermatologists and published in non-dermatologic journals. The Society for Investigative Dermatology was formally founded at the Hotel Dennis in Atlantic City on June 10, 1937 (Fig. 29).

Histories of the formation of the American Academy of Dermatology and Syphilology (AAD&S) record that the concept of such a society was first discussed at the first meeting of the SID on June 10, 1937, by Earl Osborne of Buffalo and Harold Cole of Cleveland and introduced on the next day to the AMA section on dermatology then in session. Paul O’Leary of Rochester, the chair of the AMA section, then appointed a committee to “study the advisability of forming an American Academy of Dermatology and Syphilology.”

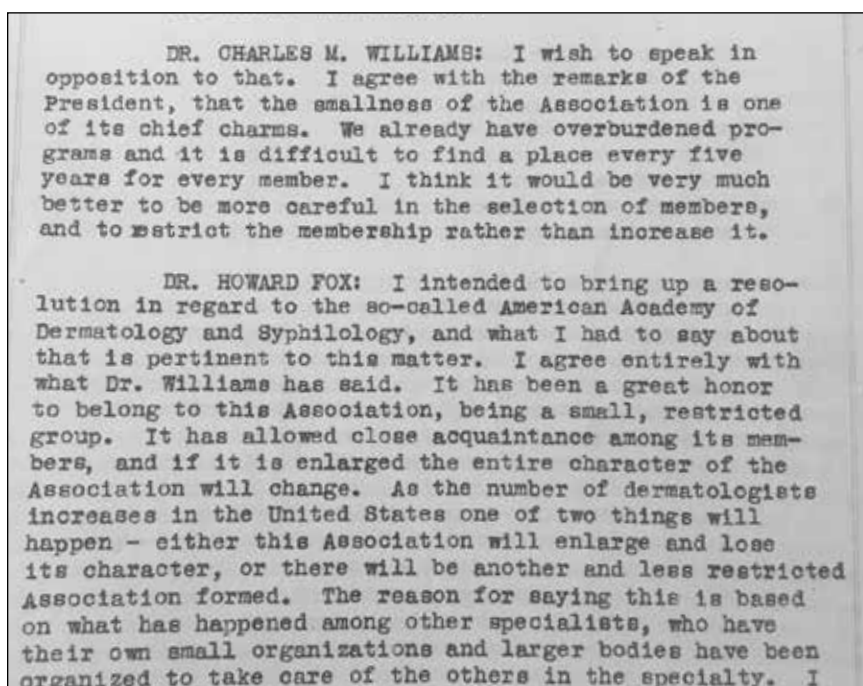

Fig. 30. Earliest written record of mention of the idea of an American Academy of Dermatology and Syphilology by Howard Fox from the minutes of the ADA meeting June, 1936, page 209.

Actually, the earliest record of mention of the AAD&S occurred at the ADA meeting a year earlier in 1936 by Howard Fox at the New Ocean House in Swampscott, Massachusetts, in the context of a motion which was on the floor to expand the membership of the ADA, the only national dermatologic organization. By this time, there were more than 500 dermatologists in the United States who had been certified by the American Board of Dermatology and Syphilology and the ADA could not (or would not) accommodate them (Fig 30).

The American Medical Association had a section on Dermatology and Syphilology which any physician who expressed an interest in Dermatology could join but there was no national organization for the growing number of board-certified dermatologists.

Social and 'extracurricular' activities have always been important to the Association, have been an integral part of the meetings, and have facilitated the personal interactions of the members. At the 1940 meeting at the Broadmoor in Colorado Springs, the first item on the agenda of the Executive Session was the presentation of the golf trophy (Fig. 31). For many years starting in 1965, the name of the winner of the golf tournament was engraved on a silver plate which is maintained in the ADA Archives (Fig. 32).

Also in 1940, other equally important business was discussed. The composition of the American Board of Dermatology was changed such that there were three members from the AAD, three from the ADA, and three from the AMA section on Dermatology and Syphilology. Also at the 1940 meeting, 10 cents per member was appropriated to the International League of Dermatologic Societies.

Golf was not the only competitive sport at ADA meetings. There were trophies for Lawn Tennis, "Ladies Golf," and Contract Bridge (Figs 33, 34, 35).

The 1941 meeting at the Hotel Roosevelt in New Orleans was highlighted by a field trip to the “National Leprosarium” in Carville, Louisiana.

There were no meetings in 1942, 1944, and 1945 due to the War but when the Association met in 1946 at the Homestead in Hot Springs, Virginia, there was an extended debate covering two single-spaced typewritten pages regarding a request from Dr. Lucien-Marie Pautrier of Strasbourg, France, whose clinic was damaged in the War and was in need of “an apparatus for electric coagulation and a large photographic apparatus on a tripod.” The Association voted to help Dr. Pautrier. There were no more live patient presentations at ADA meetings after World War II.

One hundred twenty-one members, the largest attendance to date, came to the seventy-fifth anniversary meeting in 1951, held again at The Homestead in Hot Springs, Virginia (Fig. 36).

Fig. 36. Group photo from the 75th anniversary meeting at The Homestead, Hot Springs, Virginia 1951

At the 1952 meeting of the ADA at the Broadmoor in Colorado Springs, the American Dermatological Association Research and Educational Fund, Inc. (ADARE) was formed and incorporated as a 501(c)3 tax-exempt entity. Its stated purpose was and still is to promote education and research in Dermatology. Funds from ADARE are used to support some of the educational functions of the ADA annual meeting and are used for medical student and resident grants.

Dr. Marion Sulzberger was president at the 1960 meeting at the Boca Raton Hotel and Club in Florida. The verbatim minutes were especially verbose that year. A highlight of the meeting was a bridge tournament with a director of the American Contract Bridge League in attendance. Winners were given books personally autographed by Charles Goren and their names inscribed on the sterling silver bridge trophy.

In 1974 at the meeting in Kona, Hawaii, Secretary Thomas Merrill, Jr. proclaimed that “Every member who is not lame or maimed has voiced his or her intention to celebrate the Centennial Anniversary at Williamsburg, Virginia, from May 8 to 13, 1976.”

Unfortunately, the minutes from the 1976 Centennial Celebration are among the few years that are missing from the Archives of the Association, but the program for the 1976 meeting was preserved. The Association heard an address from Justice Lewis F. Powell, Jr. of the Supreme Court of the United States followed by historical presentations from Association President Walter B. Shelley and from Association Historian Frederick Szymanski.

In the 1980's and 1990's there were ongoing debates over the formality of the social events in the meeting and whether the formality should continue. Specific criticism was leveled at the long-term practice of having a formal receiving line at the President's dinner. Gloria (Gogo) Bauer relates of Gene's induction into the ADA in 1984: “I was instructed by Gene at the time that it was unheard of for some upstart his age to be admitted so I must be on my best behavior and dress appropriately for each occasion. At that time the president's dinner was extremely formal and preceded by a receiving line of (at least) President, Vice President and spouses. I had gone to a very expensive shop in St. Louis ... and found a burgundy gown trimmed in gold on sale. I had long white gloves. I also bought a velvet cocktail dress for one of the other evenings so I felt equipped! When the receiving line reached the president's wife, she took one look and said in a syrupy southern drawl... ‘Why my dear, you look like you are going to your senior prom!’” Gogo also remembers getting politely admonished for not wearing “whites” while playing croquet.

The issue of the receiving line and the formal dress came to a head in 1999 when some members objected to packing formal wear for the upcoming meeting the following year in Vienna. After extensive debate, it was decided that the receiving line would be continued but a tremendous concession was made allowing the dress for the President's Dinner to be black tie optional for that meeting only. The receiving line was eventually dropped in the early 2000's and dress for the meeting became more casual except for the black-tie tradition of the President's Dinner which continues to the present with only two other exceptions in recent times: the 2003 meeting held at the Mauna Lani Bay Hotel in Hawaii, when Hawaiian flowered shirts embroidered with the ADA logo were distributed and the 2009 meeting at the Stein Eriksen Lodge in Park City Utah, when President John Voorhees preferred a casual dinner.

In 1990 at The Cloister, Sea Island, Georgia, Association President Harold O. Perry presided over a goals retreat meeting. It was becoming more clear that many political activities were occurring nationwide and much discussion occurred regarding the goals and missions of the American Dermatological Association. A mission statement was developed and formally adopted: "The American Dermatological Association is a society of leaders of our specialty whose purpose is to recognize, discuss and develop solutions for problems in the area of dermatologic health care, research, and education specifically in North America and more generally, in the world." It was not until two and a half decades later that this mission statement was translated into a pivot in the Association's programs.

In 1992, the Association was the beneficiary of a large testamentary gift from the estate of Dr. Everett C. Fox of Texas to ADARE. This gift continues to help give the Association continued financial independence. In this same year, the Association contributed $7,500 to the International Foundation for Dermatology to help start the Regional Dermatology Training Centre in Moshi, Tanzania.

At the 1998 meeting at the El Dorado Hotel in Santa Fe, New Mexico, there was the first discussion of the ADA establishing a website.

Relaxation of the dress code for the meetings occurred in 2000 when business casual dress was officially adopted with the exception of the President's Dinner which was to remain Black Tie.

At the 125th anniversary meeting (quasiquicentennial) in 2001 at The Breakers in Palm Beach, Florida, the Association received a congratulatory letter from George W. Bush, President of the United States (Fig. 37).

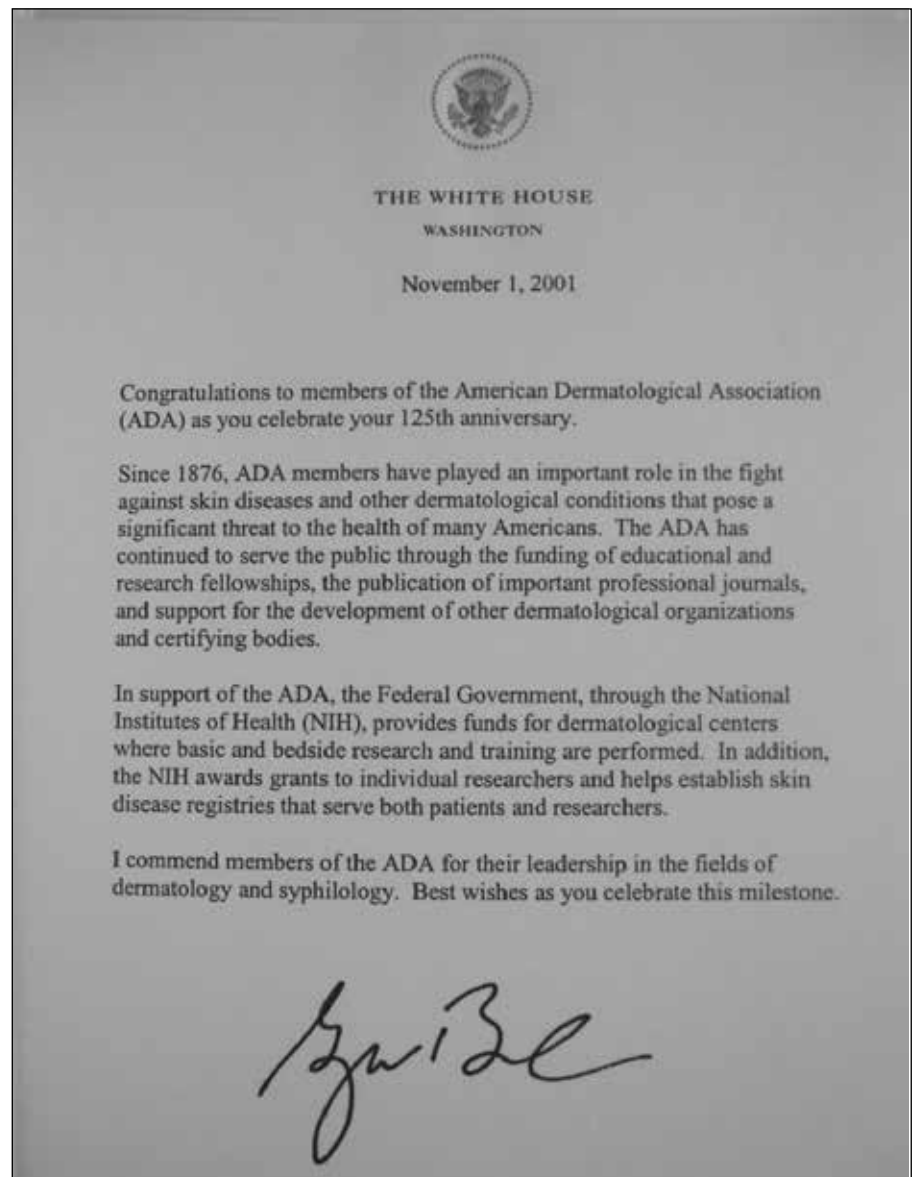

Fig. 37. Congratulatory letter from President George W. Bush on the occasion of the Association's 125th anniversary in 2001.

Over several meetings in the early 2000's, the Board, led by Secretary-Treasurer Darrell Rigel and Presidents Alan Shalita, Lowell Goldsmith, Charles McDonald, Evan Farmer, and Lee Nesbitt, made some changes in the meeting to better accommodate the needs of the members. The management of the Association and the Annual Meeting was moved from Dermatology Services, Inc., a subsidiary of the AAD, to an internal full-time staff. The meeting schedule was changed to the current Thursday thru Sunday format from the previous format of a week-long meeting with a day off. As the membership was aging, a formal push was made to expand membership with a focus on younger members, including the establishment of the First Five Year group with the intent to make them a more active part of the organization. Before 1990, it was very unusual for more than ten members to be inducted in any given year, so there was a conscious effort to increase membership up to the current limit of 250 active members. During the three decades from 1990 to 2019, there have been 472 new members inducted, in some years as many as 22. This influx of new members has kept up with the number of members reaching senior status or retiring. At the meetings in the early 2000's, the second formal dinner with receiving line for the new members was replaced with an informal evening event with the sponsor introducing the new member at randomly seated tables to more personalize the introduction to the ADA. To add to the goal of enhancing social interaction, a daily spouse breakfast, spouse book club, barbeque lunch, and new afternoon sports and tour events were incorporated. New members were also recognized with ribbons on their badges so that all attendees could better welcome them to the organization. The meetings were made more interesting adding outside speakers and topics beyond what would be found at a more typical dermatology meeting. The meetings were made warmer, more attendee and spouse/guest friendly and fun while keeping the quality of the academic sessions. All of these things led to a significant increase in attendance at the meetings and a greater demand to join the organization.

In his 2003 presidential address in Hawaii entitled "American Dermatological Association a New Beginning", President Lowell Goldsmith charged the ADA to "Make the ADA the forum and the format for asking and discussing the most difficult questions facing Dermatology, Medicine and Society; assuring the ADA has the membership, structure and organization to address the most important questions." A decade and a half later, much of this charge would be realized. During the presidency of Evan Farmer in 2005, formal and informal topics of discussion included the value of maintenance of certification, future Dermatology workforce needs, the role of physician extenders and the changing practice of Dermatology with increased emphasis on cosmetic and non-cosmetic procedures, development and use of biologics for specific diseases, and the potential isolation of Dermatology from the house of medicine.

Discussions about these and other issues continued until 2014 when the Board built on previous actions and took stock of the ADA and its place in the house of medicine. There was a realization that in the decades following the formation of the American Academy of Dermatology (AAD) and the Society for Investigative Dermatology, the ADA remained a vital force in Dermatology, primarily performing the task of peer recognition for outstanding and meritorious contributions to the specialty.

Fig. 38. It wasn't all work. At the 2010 meeting in New York (the largest attendance of any meeting to date with 227 members and 149 spouses/guests), the ADA was welcomed to Yankee Stadium.

However, with the passage of a half-century and the slow adaptation of progressive membership parameters, the ADA's mission became more ethereal. The AAD had become a premier leader in Dermatology education, and its associated advocacy efforts and political action committee worked to advance and solve problems in the operational issues that evolved in clinical care with changes in American Medicine. At the same time, subspecialty societies began aggressively advocating for the narrower issues that affected their interests.

The ADA faced an identity crisis. For several decades, leadership made a number of attempts, to study, define, and rationalize an appropriate mission for the ADA. In 2014, the Board of the ADA queried the membership for their perspectives on the challenges that face Dermatology and issues that could present existential threats to a thriving specialty. This initial outreach included a note to members indicating the following; As was noted by Dr. Rex Amonette in his Presidential Address of 2013: "We are a family of dermatology – clinical, medical, surgical, aesthetic, investigative. It behooves all of us to think deeply about the future of our specialty. We face the palpable threat of marginalization in a health care environment that – for its own reasons – may wish to view us as dealing with only cosmetic problems." Responses to the survey varied, were sometimes contradictory and many were laden with the frustration. Clinical medicine was increasingly regulated. Research resources were markedly constrained. Metrics for resident education were continuously changing.

By 2015, the Board of Directors of the ADA had contemplated the amalgamated responses and decided to focus on two major issues: the value of the integral nature of dermatology in Medicine and issues leading to the marginalization of Dermatology within the house of Medicine. With this new clarity, ADA could concentrate its membership bandwidth to begin a magnificent transformation into an institution that could and would comment and opine on Dermatology's issues within the context of patient well-being and the advancement of the general public health. It issued an ethos statement that articulated the new direction of the organization.

Ethos: The American Dermatological Association maintains a leadership role in the contemplation and implementation of initiatives that advance the field of Dermatology through research, education, and advocacy. This, in turn, advances the care and treatment of patients with skin disease. As an independent, non-profit, self-funded organization, the American Dermatological Association provides objective analyses and recommendations regarding the complex challenges faced by Dermatology. This is accomplished through stewardship and collaboration with other organizations committed to the ongoing process of advancing the field of Dermatology in the house of Medicine.

In 2016, at the annual meeting in Santa Barbara, California. The central themes of Antoinette Hood's presidential address were the questions of "what is Dermatology, what is a dermatologist and what should be a primary role of the American Dermatological Association." The conversation continued at the ADA board meeting which further crystallized the issues and approved the following specific initiatives: 1. incorporate the 1990 mission statement into the bylaws and prominently displayed it on the ADA website and membership certificates, 2. restructure the annual program to focus on the purpose of the ADA, 3. develop one or two important topics for the ADA to address for the coming year and each following year, and 4. publish the results of the topic presentations and discussions and/or in a white paper on the ADA website after each meeting.

As President-Elect in 2016, David Cohen spearheaded a mission to issue the first public health statement in ADA's history and challenged all future presidents to take charge of studying and considering strategic initiatives that encourage, advance, and support policies that improve the public health. The first strategic initiative resulted in a co-sponsorship of a position paper of the American Academy of Ophthalmology, encouraging Herpes zoster (shingles) vaccination. This publication resulted in thousands of press impressions that ultimately removed the stealth cloak that kept the ADA from the routine conversation and collective consciousness of Dermatology. Commensurate with this pivot was the transformation of the decades-long medical student stipends into Dermatology resident and fellow awards for research focused on ADA's mission. It provided awardees the capacity to attend the annual meetings, to engage with members and gain insight into the ADA's operations. Since that first public health statement, ADA has deliberated many issues and announcements that have been well received by the medical and patient community. A position statement in support for HPV vaccination was promulgated in 2018.

In 2019, under the leadership of President Wilma Bergfeld, the outward look of the ADA was changed and amplified by the adoption of a new logo (Fig. 39) and by establishment of both a Communications Committee and an International Committee to involve more international members and to become more prominent in the House of Medicine and to the public. She also made the ADA's budgeting process more formal and recounted the accomplishments of women in her Presidential Address.

Responding to the inability to convene an in-person Board of Directors meeting in March, 2020, due to the COVID-19 pandemic, President Brian Berman chaired the first “real-time, virtual” Board of Directors meeting during which he advanced two position statements in 2020: 1) Optimizing patient access to medications: Pharmacy Benefit Managers (PBMs) and patient access to affordable and appropriate medications; and, 2) Transplant patients needing to be examined by a dermatologist: Endorsement of enhanced screening, surveillance, and prevention of skin cancer and skin infection in patients with solid organ transplants.

The annual meeting scheduled for October, 2020 was canceled due to the COVID-19 pandemic and was replaced with a virtual on-line meeting. This cancellation was a mere speed-bump in the long and illustrious history of the Association.

In a sense, the ADA has been reborn as an Institute for Dermatology and thrives today as a reinvigorated organization with a resolute mission and keen self-awareness. Its proud members continue to be leaders across the entirety of Dermatology.

The ACTIVE MEMBERS of The American Dermatological Association 1876 -2020

Membership in the Association shall be at the invitation of the Association. Active Members shall be citizens or permanent resident aliens of the United States (including its possessions), or Canada, and be graduates in medicine. They shall have been certified by the American Board of Dermatology, or shall have passed the Fellowship Examination in Dermatology given by the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada, at least five years previous to proposal for membership.

ADA By-Laws Article II, Section 1 and Section 3(a).

The following pages present photographs and brief biographical sketches of nearly all of the 1,127 dermatologists who have been inducted into Active Membership in the American Dermatological Association since its founding in 1876 up to 2020. For the biographical sketches of members inducted prior to 1994 I have relied heavily on previous histories of the Association published in 1976 by Frederick J. Szymanski and in 1994 by Robert B. Pittelkow. Attempts were made to update these older biographies. Many of these two previous volumes have included personal commentary by the authors and for the most part these comments have been retained in this volume. For members inducted since 1994 multiple attempts by email, telephone, internet searches and other means have been made in order to obtain up to date biographical information but I realize that some of the information is constantly changing and may be incomplete or not current.

Members are presented as the Founders, the Charter Members and then every other member by their year of induction into the Association. Within each year of induction members are listed alphabetically. Please refer to the Index for the year of induction and the page number in this volume for each member.

Although an attempt was made to edit the biographical sketches for some degree of uniformity, many of them are limited by the amount of information available or the format in which they were submitted. Members had the opportunity to correct and update their biographies and photographs on two occasions prior to the publication of this volume. I apologize in advance for errors, inaccuracies and if some of the biographies are not current. The entire content of this volume is posted on the Association's website and as errors are identified and new members are inducted the website version will be corrected and updated periodically. A future historian a generation from now may publish the next volume.

Isaac E. Atkinson

Founder

Born: 1846

Graduated: M.D., University of Maryland 1865.

Teaching Appointments: University of Maryland, first Clinical Professor of Dermatology in Baltimore, Professor of Pathology and Materia Medica and Dean of the Medical School 1886-1900.

Professional Societies: American Dermatological Association, Founder and Treasurer, 1877-1882, Vice President, 1882-1883, and President, 1887-1888; President of the Medical Faculty and the Clinical Society of Maryland.

Author: Wrote ably on many dermatological subjects, including some 25 important papers.

I.E. Atkinson was a pioneer and expert in his chosen field; his work in syphilis was exceptionally noteworthy. Deceased 1906.

Thomas R. Brown

Founder

Born: 1845.

Graduated: M.D. (date and place unknown).

Training: Pupil of N.R Smith, famous surgeon at the University of Maryland.

Military Service: Assistant Surgeon, U.S. Navy 1866-1870.

Teaching Appointments: College of Physicians and Surgeons, Baltimore, Professor of Clinical and Operative Surgery.

Professional Societies: American Dermatological Association, Founder; Medical and Surgical Society of Baltimore, President.

Author: Several papers on syphilis Although primarily a surgeon, not a dermatologist, Brown was present at the organization meeting of the association. He did not attend the preliminary or first and second annual meetings.

Deceased 1879.

L. Duncan Bulkley

Founder

Born: 1845.

Graduated: M.D., College of Physicians and Surgeons, 1869.

Practice: Founder of the New York Skin and Cancer Hospital, 1883.

Professional Societies: American Dermatological Association, Founder and first Secretary, 1876; one of a small group who formed the Section on Cutaneous Medicine and Surgery, American Medical Association, and its first Chairman, 1888.

Awards: Alvarenga Prize, College of Physicians of Philadelphia, 1891, for Syphilis in the Innocent.

Author: Six or eight textbooks, mostly on dermatotherapy; Syphilis in the Innocent, with complete bibliography. Bulkley originally described herpes gestationis (Amer. Jour. of Obs and Dis. of Women and Children 6:1, February 1874).

Deceased 1928.

Samuel C. Busey

Founder

Born: 1828

Graduated: M.D., University of Pennsylvania, 1848

Practice: Washington, DC

Professional Societies: Medical Society of the District of Columbia, member for 46 years, and President in 1877, 1894, and 1895; American Dermatological Association, Founder.

Author: About 150 medical articles, including one on poison ivy dermatitis, 1873; in Personal Reminiscences, 1895, largely a history of the Washington medical society.

Busey does not mention the association in his reminiscences. He had a strong personality and was an invincible defender of medical ethics.

Deceased 1901.

Louis A. Duhring

Founder

Born: December 23, 1845, Philadelphia.

Graduated: M.D., University of Pennsylvania, 1867.

Training: Postgraduate work in dermatology in London, Paris and Vienna; one of Hebra's favorite pupils.

Practice: Dispensary for Skin Diseases in Philadelphia opened in 1871.

Teaching Appointments: University of Pennsylvania, Lecturer, 1871, Clinical Professor, 1876, and first Professor, 1890.

Professional Societies: American Dermatological Association, Founder and first Vice President, 1876, President, 1878 and 1879.

Author: 87 articles; the third American textbook on dermatology, Practical Treatise on Skin Diseases, 1877, published for three editions and translated into French, Italian, and Russian; first American atlas on dermatology, 1876.

Duhring was the first to describe dermatitis herpetiformis in a series of about 18 papers between 1884 and 1891. He was also first to describe pruritus hiemalis, Phil. Med. Times 4:3, 1873.

Deceased May 8, 1913.

George H. Fox

Founder

Born: October 8, 1846 Saratoga, New York.

Graduated: M.D., University of Pennsylvania, 1869.

Training: Postgraduate work in Europe for three years under Virchow in Berlin, Hebra, Neumann, Schroetter, and Stoerk in Vienna, Bazin, Hardy, and Vidal in Paris, Tilbury Fox and Hutchinson in London.

Teaching Appointments: At different times, between 1875 and 1907, served as Professor of Dermatology at the Women's Medical College of New York Infirmary, Starling Medical College, Columbus, OH, Post-Graduate Medical School and Hospital, New York, College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York.

Professional Societies: American Dermatological Association, Founder, 1876, President, 1892, and Honorary President, 1926; Medical Society of the County of New York, President, 1894; New York Dermatological Society, President four times.

Author: Photographic Illustrations of Skin Diseases, 1880; Skin Diseases in Children, 1897; Reminiscences, 1926. George Fox was the first to use photography in the illustration of diseases of the skin (1880) and first to describe a chronic, itching, papular eruption of the axillae and pubes (Fox-Fordyce disease), jour. of Cutaneous (and Genito-Urinary Dis). 20:1, 1902. The clinical observations were done by Fox, the histology by Fordyce. Fox described matchbox dermatitis in 1888; probably the earliest report of a contact dermatitis.

Deceased 1937.

Arthur Van Harlingen

Founder

Born: 1845.

Graduated: M.D., University of Pennsylvania, 1867.

Practice: Chief of Clinic in Duhring's service at the University of Pennsylvania, 1871-1885.

Teaching Appointments: Philadelphia Polyclinic, Founder and Instructor to Professor of Dermatology 1871-1885.

Professional Societies: Secretary of the Section of Dermatology and Syphilology of the International Medical Congress, Philadelphia, 1876; American Dermatological Association: Founder, 1877, Secretary, 1879-1883, Vice President, 1883-1885, and President, 1906.

Author: Handbook of the Diagnosis and Treatment of Skin Diseases, 1884, that ran through four editions within a few years.

Deceased 1936.

Carl Heitzman

Founder

Born: October 2, 1836, Vinkovci, Slovenia, Kingdom of Hungary (now Croatia).

Graduated: M.D. 1859 Budapest and Vienna.

Training: Dermatology, Vienna under Franz Schuh, Hebra, Stricker and Rokitansky.

Practice: Moved to New York when he was unable to succeed Rokitansky at chair of pathology in Vienna.

Professional Societies: American Dermatological Association, Founder.

Author: In Vienna, Heitzman painted many of the plates of Hebra's Atlas in 1864 and 1865. Upon settling in New York, he became recognized as an able dermatologist. He was present at the organization meeting of the American Dermatological Association and attended its annual meetings regularly, often joining in discussion of the papers presented.

Deceased December 6, 1896.

Edward L. Keyes

Founder

Born: 1843.

Graduated: M.D., New York University, 1866.

Practice: Attending dermatologist for many years, City Hospital and Bellevue Hospital.

Teaching Appointments: Woman's Medical College 1871 and Bellevue Hospital Medical College 1872, taught dermatology and genitourinary diseases; Bellevue Hospital Medical College, first Professor of Dermatology 1881.

Professional Societies: New York Dermatological Society, Founder; American Dermatological Association, Founder and Charter Member.

Author: The Tonic Treatment of Syphilis, 1877; co-author with W. H. Van Buren of a textbook on genitourinary diseases and syphilis that remained a classic for many years.

Edward Keyes was first to invent the cutaneous punch for biopsies, and first to prove by means of repeated blood counts that mercury in small doses was a tonic (Am. Jour. of Med. Sc., January 1876).

Deceased 1924.

John A. Ochterlony

Founder

Born: 1838.

Graduated: M.D., New York University, 1860, three years after arriving from Sweden.

Practice: Louisville, KY, 1865-1882.

Military Service: Surgeon, U.S. Army 1861, assigned to hospital work in Louisville 1862.

Teaching Appointments: Louisville Medical College, Founder 1865; University of Louisville, Lecturer of Clinical Medicine, and also Professor of Principles and Practice of Medicine 1882-1908.

Professional Societies: Kentucky Medical Society, President; American Medical Association, Vice President; American Dermatological Association, Founder.

Awards: Decorated by the Swedish government and the Vatican.

Although Ochterlony was one of the founders of the association, he apparently had little interest in dermatology and never attended the annual meetings.

Deceased 1908.

Henry G. Piffard

Founder

Born: 1842.

Graduated: M.D., College of Physicians and Surgeons 1864.

Training: Postgraduate work under Dr. Tilbury Fox at University College Hospital, and also in Paris and Vienna.

Teaching Appointments: New York University, Professor of Dermatology, 1874, first to give postgraduate instruction in dermatology in America 1875; New York Post-Graduate Medical School and Hospital 1882.

Professional Societies: New York Dermatological Society, Founder; American Dermatological Association, Founder.

Author: Translated Hardy's The Dartrous Diathesis or Eczema and Allied Affections, 1868; Elementary Treatise on Diseases of the Skin, 1876, the second American textbook on dermatology; Treatise on Materia Medica and Therapeutics of the Skin, 1881, first American textbook on dermatotherapy.

According to Andrew R. Robinson, Henry Piffard described the tuberculides in 1892, four years before Darier. He was also a pioneer in physiotherapy of the skin.

Deceased 1910.

Robert W. Taylor

Born: 1842.

Graduated: M.D., College of Physicians and Surgeons 1868.

Teaching Appointments: University of Vermont, first Professor of Dermatology; at different times, Professor of Dermatology at New York Post Graduate Medical School and Hospital and the College of Physicians and Surgeons.

Professional Societies: New York Dermatological Society, Founder and four-time President; American Dermatological Association, Founder and first Vice President 1877, President 1882 and 1883.

Author: Syphilitic Lesions of the Osseous System in Infants and Young Children, 1875; a large folio, A Clinical Atlas of Venereal and Skin Diseases, 1889.

Robert Taylor was first to describe idiopathic progressive atrophy (Arch. Derm. 2:114, 1876), and a pioneer in the study of bone syphilis.

Deceased 1908.

Founder

Faneuil D. Weisse

Born: 1842.

Graduated: M.D., Medical Department, University of the City of New York, 1864.

Teaching Appointments: New York University, first lecturer on diseases of the skin 1865, Clinical Professor 1867-1874.

Professional Societies: New York Dermatological Society, Founder; American Dermatological Association, Founder.

Faneuil Weisse wrote little on dermatology but was greatly interested in it and was particularly gifted in stimulating the interest of his fellow workers in the subject. Weisse conceived the idea of a dermatological society in America while studying his specialty abroad. This idea crystallized in the founding of the New York Dermatological Society.

Deceased 1901.

Founder

James Clarke White

Born: 1833.

Graduated: M.D., Harvard 1855.

Training: Postgraduate work under Hebra, Oppolzer, Skoda, Rokitansky 1856-1857.

Practice: Founded first dispensary for skin diseases in Boston 1860.

Teaching Appointments: Harvard Medical School, Lecturer on Diseases of the Skin 1863, first Professor of Dermatology in America 1871.

Professional Societies: Chairman, Section of Dermatology and Syphilology, International Medical Congress 1876; American Dermatological Association, founder and first President 1877; President of the Sixth International Dermatological Congress 1907.

Author: 125 medical papers, 50 reviews, 94 editorials, and eight books.

James White was the first to describe dermatitis venenata and contact dermatitis in 1887. He also described keratosis follicularis in the Jour. of Cut. and Genito-Urinary Dis., June 1889, several months before Darier's report.

Deceased 1916.

Founder

Edward Wigglesworth

Founder

Born: 1840.

Graduated: M.D., Harvard Medical School, 1865.

Training: Five years postgraduate work in Europe, devoted chiefly to dermatology.

Practice: Established, at his own expense, a free clinic for charity patients with diseases of the skin; later joined dermatologic staff, City Hospital, Boston 1877.

Teaching Appointments: Harvard Medical School, Instructor in Dermatology.

Professional Societies: Boston Medical Library, Founder; Boston Dermatological Club, active member.

Author: In his early professional life, contributed much of importance to the dermatologic literature of his time.

Wigglesworth had a large library and a fine collection of moulages by Baretta, all of which he donated to the Harvard Medical School.

Deceased 1896.

Lunsford P. Yandell

Founder

Born: 1805.

Graduated: M.D., University of Maryland 1825.

Practice: Practiced several years in Tennessee; moved to Louisville and founded the Medical Institute, which later became the University of Louisville; was ordained a minister, 1862, but resumed medical practice in 1867.

Professional Societies: American Dermatological Association, Founder, at 71 years of age.

Author: Over 100 articles on subjects in science, religion, and medicine, but none on dermatology.

Yandell's life interest was in geology and paleontology, in which branches of science he possessed an international reputation. Seven or eight newly discovered fossils bear his name. He was the oldest founder of the Association.

Deceased 1878.

William Brodie

Charter Member

Born: 1823.

Graduated: M.D., College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University, 1850.

Practice: Surgeon to St. Mary's and many of the railroad companies centering in Detroit.

Teaching Appointments: Professor of Clinical Medicine, Michigan College of Medicine 1879-1886, and Detroit College of Medicine 1886-1890.

Professional Societies: Detroit Medical Society, Founder 1852, and President 1855; office holder in the Wayne County Medical Society and the Michigan State Medical Society; American Medical Association, Secretary 1857, Vice President 1875, and President 1886.

Author: Editor, Peninsular Medical Journal 1855-1857, and Therapeutic Gazette 1880-1885.

Brodie excelled as a surgeon and pioneer organizer of medicine, but he was interested in dermatology and wrote several articles on the subject.

Deceased 1890.

Almon P. Brooks

Charter Member

Born: March 22, 1841, Tennessee.

Graduated: M.D., University of Virginia 1865.

Practice: Licensed in Illinois 1877 and in Michigan 1908; Also practiced in Tennessee, Arkansas and Chicago.

Brooks' specialty was internal medicine, and while he was not greatly interested in dermatology, he was a charter member and read a paper on the internal manifestations of iodine sensitivity at the first meeting of the association.

Deceased 1909.

Robert Campbell

Charter Member

Information and photo not available.

Deceased.

Howard F. Damon

Charter Member

No photo available.

Born: 1833.

Graduated: M.D., Harvard Medical School 1861.

Practice: Boston City Hospital, First Chief of Clinic 1868.

Awards: Boylston prize for an essay on leukocythemia 1863.

Author: Neurosis of the Skin, 1860; atlas of photographs of varied dermatoses from his clinic, 1869, (they were not, of course, the equal of the photographs published by George H. Fox in 1879)

Although he was a charter member, Howard Damon evinced little interest in the association.

Deceased 1884.

William H. Draper

Charter Member

Born: 1830.

Graduated: M.D., College of Physicians and Surgeons 1855.

Training: Studied dermatology in Europe.

Practice: Despite a thorough knowledge of dermatology, Draper drifted entirely into the practice of general medicine, in which he developed a large practice.

Teaching Appointments: College of Physicians and Surgeons, taught dermatology around 1869.

Professional Societies: New York Dermatological Society, Charter Member, 1869.

Deceased 1901.

Daniel W. Hand

Charter Member

Born: 1834.

Graduated: M.D., University of Pennsylvania 1856.

Practice: Physician, Minnesota; President, State Board of Health 1873-1889.

Professional Societies: Minnesota State Medical Society, Founder; Ramsay County Medical Society, Founder, President 1870 and 1882.

From Francis W. Lynch, we learn that Hand was the first physician to introduce microscopic pathology in Minnesota. His interests were chiefly along the line of general medicine and public health, not dermatology.

Deceased 1889.

William A. Hardaway

Charter Member

Born: 1850.

Graduated: M.D., Missouri Medical College 1870.

Teaching Appointments: Taught dermatology at Missouri Medical College and later at the Medical Department of Washington University for about 35 years.

Professional Societies: American Dermatological Association, President 1884-1885.

Author: 81 papers, and numerous chapters on dermatology for encyclopedic works on medicine; Essentials of Vaccination, 1882; Manual of Skin Diseases, 1890; Handbook of Cutaneous Therapeutics, in collaboration with Joseph Grindon 1907.

Hardaway first introduced use of electrolysis in dermatology in 1877, but he credited Charles E. Michel, St Louis, with its use on “wild hairs” of the lids in 1875. He first described prurigo nodularis under the title “Multiple Tumors of the Skin Accompanied by Intense Pruritus;” Arch. of Derm. 6:129, 1880.

Deceased 1923.

James N. Hyde

Charter Member

Born: 1840.

Graduated: M.D., University of Pennsylvania, 1869.

Practice: First to practice and teach dermatology in Chicago, Rush Medical College 1873.

Professional Societies: American Dermatological Association, Charter Member, first Treasurer, and twice President.

Author: Diseases of the Skin, first through eighth editions 1883-1909; wrote extensively on blastomycosis, sporotrichosis, and pellagra.

James Hyde was the first to describe synovial lesions of the skin in 1883. He also was first to call attention to the influence of light in the production of skin cancer (Am. Jour. Med. Sc., January 1906), one year before Dubreuil's article appeared. Hyde gave the name prurigo nodularis to the disease described by Hardaway as “skin tumors accompanied by intense pruritus.”

Deceased 1910.

Benjamin Joy Jeffries

Charter Member

Born: 1833.

Graduated: M.D., (date and place unknown)

Practice: Dermatology, Boston.

Awards: Boylston prize essay on "Recent Advances in the Pathology and Treatment of Diseases of the Skin."

On Sept 24, 1860, a notice appeared informing the medical profession of Boston that a free dispensary for diseases of the skin and eye had been established for the treatment of charity cases. It bore the signatures of James C. White and B.J. Jeffries, and F. B. Sprague, the latter two being ophthalmologists. This simple announcement, according to Charles J. White, marked the birth of the specialty of dermatology in Boston.

Deceased 1915.

Francis F. Maury

Charter Member

Born: 1840.

Graduated: M.D., Jefferson Medical College 1862.

Practice: Philadelphia Hospital, Attending Obstetrician, 1865, Surgeon, succeeding Samuel D. Gross.

Teaching Appointments: Jefferson Medical College, Lecturer on Venereal and Cutaneous Diseases 1866-1879.

Author: A few dermatological articles, including "Tattooing as a Means of Communicating Syphilis"; with Duhring, The Photographic Review of Medicine and Surgery, 1870. Maury's dermatological interest was confined primarily to his lectureship. Although he and Duhring published only 24 numbers of their review, its contributors included S. Weir Mitchell, Pancoast, Gross, Keen, Morton, and Van Harlingen.

Deceased 1879.

Andrew R. Robinson

Charter Member

Born: 1845.

Graduated: M.D., University and Bellevue Hospital Medical College, 1868; University of Toronto 1869; LRC.P. and LRC.S., Edinburgh 1870.

Teaching Appointments: New York Medical College and Hospital for Women, first Professor of Histology and Pathologic Anatomy; New York Polyclinic Medical School and Hospital, Founder and Professor of Dermatology for many years.

Professional Societies: Ninth International Medical Congress, President, Section of Dermatology and Syphilology, 1887; New York Academy of Medicine, first Chairman, Section of Dermatology and Syphilology; American Dermatological Association, President 1896.

Author: Manual of Dermatology, 1884. Robinson, a pioneer American histopathologist, was first to describe hydrocystoma (Jour. Cut. Dis. 2:362, 1884; 11:293, 1893). Husband of Daisy Orleman Robinson, the first American Woman Dermatologist. She was inducted into the ADA in 1913.

Deceased 1924.

Charles C. Smith

Charter Member

Born: 1828.

Graduated: M.D., University of Pennsylvania 1851.

Training: Postgraduate work, France, England, and Germany 1868.

Practice: Chicago, 1853-1868; upon his return from Europe, a member of the Venereal and Dermatologic Department, Cook County Hospital; Consulting Physician, Presbyterian Hospital.

Teaching Appointments: Woman's Medical College, Professor of Children's Diseases 1870.

Professional Societies: Harvard Club, President; Chicago literary Club, President.

Data obtained through the kindness of Dr. B. Barker Beeson.

Deceased 1894.

Robert F. Weir

Charter Member

Born: 1838.

Graduated: M.D., College of Physicians and Surgeons 1859.

Practice: Upon completion of military service, a general practitioner; later a surgeon exclusively at St Luke's, Roosevelt, Bellevue, and New York hospitals.

Military Service: Surgeon, U.S. Army. 1861-1865

Teaching Appointments: College of Physicians and Surgeons, Clinical Professor of Surgery 1883 and Professor 1892-1903.

Professional Societies: American Surgical Association, President 1899; Royal College of Surgeons, London 1899

Although a charter member of the association, Weir had little interest in dermatology.

Deceased.

Silas H. Durkee

1877

Graduated: M.D., Dartmouth College 1826

Practice: Portsmouth, NH, until 1841; Boston, general practitioner with special interest in dermatology; Boston City Hospital, Consulting Physician, until his death.

Professional Societies: Medical Society of the State of New York, honorary member 1859.

Awards: Boylston prize for volume on dermatology and syphilology

Author: Two octavo volumes, dermatology and syphilology; articles on dermatology, Boston Medical and Surgical Journal.

Deceased.

Frank P. Foster

1877

Graduated: M.D., College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University 1862.

Teaching Appointments: Professor of Dermatology for some time at Columbia University.

Author: Four-volume medical dictionary, translated into seven languages; two-volume handbook on therapeutics; several encyclopedic articles; editor, New York Medical Journal for 30 years.

Foster's work in dermatology was soon completely eclipsed by his literary work. He did some careful research work in variola and vaccination and presented some new facts concerning vaccinosyphilitic inoculation. He spoke many foreign languages and was an expert Latin scholar.

Deceased.

William Henry Geddings

1877

Born: Charleston, South Carolina April 23, 1838

Graduated: Medical College of South Carolina 1861.

Practice: Charleston, South Carolina, New York and Aiken South Carolina, specialized in pulmonary diseases.

Military Service: Chief medical purveyor of the Army of Northern Virginia of the Confederate States Army. He was present at the surrender at Appomattox in October 1862.

Professional Societies: American Medical Association, Medical Association of South Carolina, New York Dermatological Society. Geddings never practiced dermatology, but he had a fine library of dermatologic volumes.

Deceased.

Samuel Sherwell

1877

Graduated: M.D., Bellevue Medical College 1868.

Training: Postgraduate work under Hebra, Schrotter, Oppolzer, and Skoda in Vienna.

Practice: Dermatology, Brooklyn 1871-1927.

Military Service: Anglo-American Ambulance Corps with Sir William McCormack and Marion Sims, Franco Prussian War 1870.

Teaching Appointments: Long Island Medical College, Lecturer and Professor of Dermatology.

Professional Societies: American Dermatological Association, President 1894-1895; New York Dermatological Society, President 1881 and 1909.

Sherwell was the first to use acid nitrate of mercury after curettage in the treatment of cutaneous epitheliomata, an exceedingly efficient method giving excellent cosmetic results (Jour. of Cut. and Genito-Urinary Dis. 5:9, 1887). He was the first dermatologist to practice in Brooklyn and the first teacher of dermatology at Long Island Medical College.

Deceased.

Edward B. Bronson

1878

Graduated: M.D., College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University 1869.

Training: Bellevue Hospital, Intern; two years studying dermatology in Berlin, Dresden, Prague, Vienna, Paris, and London.

Practice: City Hospital and Bellevue Hospital, New York, staff member

Teaching Appointments: New York Polyclinic Medical School and Hospital, Professor of Dermatology 1882-1904; later Professor Emeritus.

Professional Societies: New York Dermatological Society, President (twice); American Dermatological Association, President 1891-1892.

Bronson served for many years on the editorial boards of the Archives of Dermatology and Syphilology and the New York Medical Record.

Deceased.

Francis B. Greenough

1878

Graduated: M.D., Harvard Medical School 1866.

Training: Studied dermatology in Vienna for one year.

Practice: Boston Dispensary, Department for Skin Diseases, for 24 years.

Military Service: Assistant Surgeon, U.S. Army 1864.

Teaching Appointments: Harvard Medical School, Clinical Instructor in Syphilis 1875-1895.

Professional Societies: American Dermatological Association, Vice President 1886-1887 and President 1890-1891.

Francis Greenough had an unusual medical education. After receiving his scholastic degree from Harvard College in 1859, he spent a year in the Lawrence Scientific School and two years in Pisa and Florence studying medicine and architecture. He was serving as an assistant surgeon with the army two years before he received his medical degree. Greenough's life-long interest was syphilis.

Deceased.

George H. Rohe

Graduated: M.D., University of Maryland School of Medicine 1873.

Training: Studied under Wigglesworth, Jr. and became assistant physician, Boston Dispensary for Skin Diseases 1876.

Practice: Later in life, Superintendent, Maryland Hospital for the Insane, and other mental institutions.

Teaching Appointments: College of Physicians and Surgeons, Professor of Dermatology 1880-1890; gave up the chair of dermatology, preferring to hold other professorships, including obstetrics and hygiene, materia medica, therapeutics and mental diseases.

In the past 100 years, no member has written more, received more awards and honors, and given as many special lectures. The pivotal paper of Sulzberger and Witten in 1952 on Compound F (later named hydrocortisone) introduced topical glucocorticoids into dermatology. Probably no other dermatologist in the world was so universally acclaimed and admired. In his retirement, Marion, with his wife Roberta, produced audiovisual programs for teaching dermatology to schoolchildren and to the public, as well as to physicians and other health personnel.
